Taking the mystery out of Living Room Suites

Come to our branch display room and see the above partly constructed dayenport. You do not have to buy blindly when you buy a Garber Brothers Living Room Suite.

Note these construction features:—

Hardwood frames, morticed and doweled—not nailed. Webbing construction both bottom and back. Springs pressed down to a uniform height and tied nine times. Over the springs is a layer of strong burlap, then a layer of moss, then another of burlap and then a layer of hair. Over all this is another layer of muslin and finally the outside upholstery material is skilfully applied.

18 Springs in each arm, each spring is in an individual box of muslin.

Cushions contain 36 springs each, together with a packing of felt. Cushions are filled by a special machine which assures uniform and proper distribution of the felt.

Exact care is taken in every step of construction and a careful examination is made of every piece of material entering into the making of a Garber Brothers Living Room Suite.
